

Education & Learning

53 words · Education & Learning

NOUNS

degree

a qualification awarded by a university after completing a course of study

She has a degree in economics from the University of Barcelona.

exam

a formal test of knowledge or ability

She passed all her exams with top marks.

grades

marks awarded for academic work or exams

Her grades improved significantly after she started tutoring.

lecture

a formal talk given to a group of students at a university

The lecture on climate policy was standing room only.

dissertation

a long piece of academic writing on a specific topic, usually for a degree

She spent a year researching and writing her dissertation.

tenure

the right to hold a permanent academic position

She was granted tenure after ten years of research and publishing.

autodidact

a person who is self-taught

He never went to university. He's a complete autodidact.

curriculum

the subjects and content taught in a school or course

The national curriculum has been updated to include coding.

tuition

teaching or instruction, especially at a university; also the fees charged

Tuition fees have risen dramatically in the last decade.

scholarship

a financial award given to a student based on academic merit or need

He won a scholarship to study abroad.

syllabus

a document outlining the topics covered in a course

The syllabus was published at the start of the semester.

pedagogy

the theory and practice of teaching

Modern pedagogy emphasises student-centred learning over rote memorisation.

meritocracy

a system in which advancement is based on ability and achievement

The university claims to be a meritocracy, but privilege still plays a role.

ADJECTIVES

compulsory

required by law or rule; mandatory

Maths and English are compulsory subjects until the age of sixteen.

academic relating to education, schools, or scholarly work

Her academic record is outstanding.

gifted

having exceptional natural ability or talent

The programme is designed for gifted children who need extra challenge.

hands-on involving practical experience rather than just theory

The course is very hands-on. You're in the workshop from day one.

undervalued

not given enough recognition or importance

They're undervalued. Not everyone needs a degree to have a good career.

vocational relating to practical skills and training for a specific job

Vocational courses in plumbing and electrical work are increasingly popular.

knowledgeable

having a lot of knowledge; well-informed

She's incredibly knowledgeable about European history.

rote

involving mechanical repetition without understanding

Rote learning can help with memorisation but not with critical thinking.

VERBS

study

to spend time learning about a subject

She studied medicine at university for six years.

revise to review and study material again in preparation for an exam

She revised for three weeks solid before the finals.

cram

to study intensively in a short period, usually just before an exam

He crammed the night before and somehow passed.

graduate

to successfully complete a degree or course of study

He graduated with honours in 2019.

enrol

to officially register for a course or institution

She enrolled on a part-time MBA programme.

nurture to encourage and support the development of a skill or talent

Good teachers nurture curiosity rather than just delivering content.

PHRASAL VERBS

drop out

to leave a course or school before finishing

He dropped out of university in his second year.

pick up

to learn something informally and without deliberate study

He picked up Spanish just from living in Madrid.

enrol on to officially register for a course

I enrolled on an online course last year. It's never too late to learn.

catch up to reach the same level as others after falling behind

She missed two weeks and struggled to catch up.

brush up on to improve or refresh knowledge or a skill you already have

She brushed up on her French before the trip to Paris.

fall behind

to fail to keep up with others in progress or work

He fell behind after missing a week of classes.

knuckle down

to start working or studying hard and seriously
She knew she had to knuckle down if she wanted to pass.

put someone off

to discourage someone from doing something Ideally, yes. Tuition fees put a lot of people off.

COLLOCATIONS

sit an exam

to take or attempt a formal examination She's sitting her final exams next month.

nose in a book

always reading
A bit, yeah. I always had my nose in a book.

gap year

a break, usually a year long, taken between finishing school and starting university, often spent travelling or working He spent his gap year teaching English abroad before starting his course.

lifelong learning

the habit of learning new things throughout your whole life, not just at school
The course is aimed at adults interested in lifelong learning.

learn by heart

to memorise something so you can repeat it exactly We had to learn the poem by heart for homework.

a steep learning curve

a situation where you have to learn a lot in a short time Starting the new job was a steep learning curve but she adapted quickly.

lose momentum

to gradually slow down or stop making progress on something I lost momentum around week three and haven't opened it since.

IDIOMS

pull an all-nighter

to stay up all night working or studying, usually just before a deadline or exam I pulled an all-nighter before the final exam and could barely keep my eyes open the next morning.

hit the books

to begin studying hard
She hit the books as soon as the exam dates were announced.

learn the ropes

to learn how something works, especially a new job or skill
You can learn the ropes of almost anything online.

a means to an end

something done not for its own value, but because it helps you achieve something else
For some careers a degree is essential, but for others it's just a means to an end.

teacher's pet

a student who is the teacher's favourite, often used negatively
He was always the teacher's pet, sat at the front and answered every question.

open doors

to create opportunities
They open doors, but once you're working, experience matters more.

school of hard knocks

real-life experience rather than formal education
He didn't go to university. He graduated from the school of hard knocks.

SET PHRASES

correct me if I'm wrong

used to introduce a point you believe is true while politely inviting correction

Correct me if I'm wrong, but didn't you say the essay was due tomorrow?

MODERN SLANG

ace

to do extremely well in an exam, test, or interview

She walked out of the exam hall grinning, certain she'd aced it.

bunk off

to skip school or a class without permission (British informal)

He used to bunk off PE and hide in the toilets.

swot

a person who studies excessively; also to study hard (British informal)

She's such a swot. She's always in the library.